

Retiree plugs back in

Kathleen is a career professional who worked in HR Administration for the State of Michigan, handling recruiting and onboarding for new hires, as well as payroll functions. She also supervised administrative and IT staff, monitoring facility budgets and spending.

A few years of retirement were enough for her to know that she didn't mean to stay completely out of the workplace, and she intentionally sought us out because a friend was already part of our Temp Talent team and recommended us.

While Kathleen isn't looking for management roles, you can ask her to do nearly any administrative task in a temporary capacity (she will consider a shorter full-time arrangement or a longer part-time one), and the office team around her can benefit from her expertise.
